

Public Parks - Villas

We walked through many public gardens and parks in Rome. Some have these beautiful buildings and architectures within them. We visited a stained glass art gallery in one of the parks.

Impressions

Walking on the cobbled stones on the narrow streets, lined with cute houses, and quaint restaurants was pleasant. The bustling city plazas, crowned with intricately designed fountains, the massive meditative basilicas, contemplative gardens and ancient ruins of the city make for a versatile city experience. Rome is a city growing around the ruins of its own past.

Although fiery hot in August, and swamped with tourists, I thoroughly enjoyed the culinary and cultural experiences offered by the city. The proximity to the ocean, with calm waters, sandy beaches and a spectacular sunset was also much appreciated.
